Dear Richard:

Please allow me to express my gratitude for your team's excellent work on my website.

From our very first meeting to the last round of edits, you, your project manager, and your developers kept the focus on making my website more professional, interactive, and attractive. Moreover, you did it with a short turn-around time and on-budget.

What started out as an average law firm website, with only my professional biography, some stock graphics, and my contact information, has turned into a clearinghouse for basic family law information and an extended "introduction" to potential clients. Importantly, visitors to my website get a much better idea of the work that my law firm does, and how we are different than most other divorce lawyers.

Perhaps equally important to me, your eye-catching design does not use any of the tired "legal images" that most law firms use. You were able to translate my general request for "something more modern; something more abstract" into a design that is better than any I've seen for other law firms in Los Angeles (although I may be a little biased).

Thanks again for a job well done.

Very truly yours,

DAVID J. GLASS
